Jack Crossing - Interview!
APRIL 16, 2013

Recently I had the amazing opportunity to ask British Graphic Designer Jack Crossing a few questions about his life and career. I found him extremely inspiring and helpful, check out his website for more at <http://www.jackcrossing.com>

You studied and graduated from Bath Spa University in 2008, what were your next steps? Did you apply for Empire Design straight away?

After graduation I became really proactive, I emailed hundreds of agencies looking for work, sending out mailers of my work. I interned at a few agencies to start with and also freelanced, working with agencies like SEA, YCN and red stone. I actually got my job at empire after the creative director saw my work at the new blood exhibition on old street, I remember getting a phone call from empires managing director asking if I'd like to meet and have a chat. I'd never actually heard of empire so I went along and chatted
